Road to Olympic qualification heats up

Two months from now, the eyes of the sporting world will be on Tokyo's National Stadium as athletics action gets underway at the Olympic Games in the Japanese capital.

Several places in the relay disciplines were claimed at the recent World Athletics Relays Silesia 21, while the qualification period for the marathon and 50km race walk ends today (31 May). Athletes in other disciplines have until 29 June to either achieve a qualification standard or place high enough in the world rankings to earn a place within the quota.

Action in the Wanda Diamond League and World Athletics Continental Tour Gold is already heating up and the excitement will continue between now and the start of the Tokyo Olympic Games.

The Road to the Olympic Games tool on the World Athletics website helps give an idea of which athletes are in line to qualify for Tokyo.

Olympic relay fields take shape at World Athletics Relays Silesia 21

With the conclusion of the World Athletics Relays Silesia 21, 23 teams have effectively secured their places in the relay events at the Tokyo Olympic Games.

All eight finalists in the women’s and men’s 4x100m and women’s, men’s and mixed 4x400m will qualify for Tokyo.

In addition, the top 10 teams in the men’s and women’s 4x100m and 4x400m, and the top 12 teams in the mixed 4x400m, have qualified for the World Athletics Championships Oregon22.
